About the Workshop Presenters

Chuck Purvis is a principal transportation planner/analyst with the Metropolitan Transportation Commission. Chuck is involved in travel demand modeling & forecasting, data analysis, census analysis, and GIS. He has a B.A. in Geography from California State University, Northridge, and a Master of City and Regional Planning degree from Rutgers University in New Jersey. Chuck has been with MTC since 1981.

Ed Christopher is a metropolitan planning specialist with the Federal Highway Administration's National Resource Center in Olympia Fields, Illinois (near Chicago). Ed has a B.A. in Political Science and Masters of Urban Policy and Planning with a transportation specialty from the University of Illinois at Chicago. He has been with the FHWA since 2001. Before FHWA, Ed was with the Bureau of Transportation Statistics for 2-1/2 years. Prior to BTS, Ed was the Director of Information Services at the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS) for about 20 years.

Elaine Murakami is a community planner with the Federal Highway Administration in Washington. She has been with the FHWA since 1993. Before FHWA, Elaine was with the Puget Sound Regional Council (PSRC) in Seattle, Washington. Elaine has a B.A. in Environmental Planning from UC Santa Cruz, and Masters degrees in Planning and Gerontology from the University of Southern California.

Clara Reschovsky is a statistician with the Census Bureau's Journey-to-Work and Migration Statistics Branch. Clara has degrees in sociology and geography from the University of Chicago and is working towards a Masters in Transportation Planning at George Mason University. Clara has worked at the Census Bureau since 1998, primarily on Census 2000 and the CTPP.

Mike Skowronek is the Geographic Information Systems (GIS) coordinator for the Metropolitan Transportation Commission. Mike has a bachelors of environmental design from Texas A&M and a Masters of City Planning from Georgia Tech. Prior to joining MTC, Mike worked for about 10 years in the public and private sector on various GIS studies. Mike has been with MTC since 2000.
